Senate Ratifies Five Power Navy Treaty

Senator France of Maryland
Casts Only Vote Against Treaty

ORDERS A NAVAL HOLIDAY

Lodge Calls Up Treaty Relating
to Submarines and Poi-
son GasesBy United Press Leased Wire
Washington—The senate Wednesday ratified the five-power naval limitation treaty.The vote was 74 to 1. Senator France, Republican, Maryland, cast
the only vote against the treaty.The treaty includes the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy
and Japan. It provides for a ten year naval holiday for the scrapping
of many existing ships; limits the size
of new war craft, including
the total tonnage and size
of aircraft carriers; establishes a definite ratio of naval strength among
the five nations; maintains the status
quo with respect to Pacific fortifications, and prescribes regulations for
the replacement of tonnage now in commission when it becomes possible.Lodge at once called up the treaty
relating to submarines and poison
gases. He hoped to have it ratified
before adjournment.The naval limitation treaty would be a disaster instead of a benefit, "if it should be regarded in the senate or elsewhere as all we should towards disarmament, even within the next ten years," Senator Borah, Idaho, asserted.Borah said he was thankful for the degree of naval disarmament achieved
and did not doubt it represented everything possible at the recent arms conference, but the world must not accept it as a completed program, he warned."It is the beginning and only the beginning," said Borah. "I would not
in the slightest detract from the importance and value of this first step."
Borah said the controversy over
the real authority of the arms conference was easy to settle for public opinion brought about the meeting.

LLOYD GEORGE IS AGAIN READY TO QUIT HIS OFFICE

Premier Will Drop Reins of Government if Support
is RefusedBy United Press Leased Wire
London—Premier Lloyd George
has his resignation ready for next Monday.Unless the house gives him a majority of 300 or more when he asks a vote of confidence on the government's General policy, his friends say he will unquestionably quit.A small majority of which Lloyd George is almost certain, will not satisfy the premier.Austen Chamberlain announced in the house of commons Wednesday that Lloyd George at Monday's session
would move the following resolution:
"That this house approves the resolutions of the supreme council conference at Cannes as a basis for the economic conference of Genoa and will support the government's effort to effect them."A vote of confidence will be taken on this resolution.Threats of crisis in two other big issues with which Lloyd George is faced may influence the house against
him. These are:1. Labor may line up against Lloyd George to prevent him leaving the country while the industrial crisis
caused by the ship building and engineering strikes is in progress.2. The Irish situation is considered full of menace and the outcome of the proposed conference between north and south leaders uncertain. Failure here
would antagonize a considerable number of coalition liberals.

Houses For Rent are Scarce in Appleton

Is it possible that there is not a house for rent in the city
of Appleton? Usually in a city
of this size the answer to the question is "No." But in Appleton
the answer is "Yes." The Post-Crescent
last night did not carry a single house for rent ad. If you are planning on moving you can find a new home by inserting a
"Wanted To Rent" ad in the Post-Crescent want ad columns.

found the proportional rates justified.

Debs Ready To Get Back Into Politics

Anti-war Agitator Pardoned
From Prison, Preparing to Resume Leadership of Socialists—Advocates Prison
Reform.By United Press Leased Wire
Terre Haute, Ind.—Eugene W. Debs
prepared for a comeback Wednesday.Debs, recently pardoned from Attorney General Clegg's prison, is in Terre Haute, Ind., where he was sentenced for violation of war
time laws, said he was ready to assume active leadership of the Socialist party.The veteran leader and five times candidate for the presidency will go to Cleveland to attend the national convention of Socialists starting April 29.Debs said he was ready to assume active leadership of the Socialist party. He said he was ready to assume active leadership

was ready to assume active leadership of the Socialist party.Debs' prescription for curing habitual criminals is psychological methods—not punishment, he said."Kindness begets kindness—brutality brutality," he said."Punitive treatment of the criminal is worse than no treatment at all. It believes anyone or hospital should be established to treat men who have gone wrong."The aged leader said he expected to go to Russia soon to study the soviets.Complete Socialist tickets will be placed in the field in every state in
the November elections, Debs stated.LEGION OBJECTS

cally against use of the state capitol

E. J. Barrett,
State Commander.Although Barrett refused to make any statement, his messages to various American legion posts throughout the state urging them to join in
the protest, indicated he disapproved
the plan of using the capitol for the proposed address.The state headquarters of the Women's auxiliary of the American legion at Eau Claire, was also notified by Barrett to join in the protest.

LOCAL POST PROTESTS

Protest also was filed with Gov.

permitting Mrs. O'Hare to speak in the capitol, because she served 13 months in prison during the war
under the espionage act. A resolution to this effect was adopted by the executive committee of the post at a special meeting and wired to Gov.
Blaine.

SENATE SURE TO PASS BILL TO HELP VETS

Senator McCormick is Sure of Quick Action in Upper House

SELL U. S. CERTIFICATES

No Difficulty Will be Experienced in Raising Money,
Senator SaysBY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1922, by Post Pub. Co.Washington—The soldier bonus bill will be passed by the senate. Those who expect it to be shelved in the upper house will be disappointed. The measure which already has passed the house may be changed, or even re-
written, but a bonus bill will go through. It will not be buried in committee or delayed on the calendar.The authority for the foregoing prediction is Senator Medill McCormick
of Illinois, a member of the Republican steering committee, an administrative senator and a very good judge
of senatorial sentiment. "Like a good many other senators Mr. McCormick has kept quiet about the bonus thus far but he says his silence and that
of his colleagues must not be mis-
construed.""How will the money be raised?" he was asked today."By the sale of treasury certificates," he said, "and there is ample
authority on the statute books today
to raise the sum needed. We authorized not long ago the issuance of up
to ten billions of short term certificates and only three billion have been issued."

PLENTY OF MONEY

"Could the country absorb such additional certificates?" was the next
inquiry."Certainly—why in the last year approximately $750,000,000 has been invested by Americans in foreign bonds. Also about a billion dollars
has been absorbed in municipal tax
exempt bonds and nobody knows
how much more. Ask the bond houses—they will tell you they can't put issues on the market fast enough
to meet the demands of investors. Also, notice the splendid way in which
the country has responded to the refunding plans of the treasury. Here
we are with the Victory bonds returning in large part long before the maturity date. I am convinced that the country would never feel an issue of
short time treasury certificates sufficient to tide us over—say for two to five years—until the British are able to resume payment to us on the war debt."Mr. McCormick didn't attempt to predict what President Harding would do with the bill if it were passed by both houses. He isn't sure of a veto as some of his colleagues
thought it is evident, he like the others, is counting upon a rewritten
bonus bill. The Illinois senator dis-claimed the opposition to the bonus
will not succeed in dilatory tactics, in fact
he says, those who are against the measure are as eager to have it brought up and voted upon and gotten out of the way as are the proponents of the bill. He seems to think the bonus ought not to be permitted to clog the legislative calendar
and legislation from being enacted
especially in this, a campaign year.

GUESS IS CORRECT

Senator McCormick guesses correctly
the sentiment of the senate if the bonus bill comes to a vote. For as
was proved in the house, the number
who finally opposed the measure dwindle
down to a minority of one.There would seem to be a majority who would shelve the measure if they could do so without a record vote but the senators who are
up for reelection this year are bound to pursue aggressive tactics and keep the bill before the senate. Men like Senator McCumber, chairman of the senate finance committee, and Medill McCormick, who are candidates for reelection, will not allow the measure
to slumber and it doesn't take a large group in the senate to compel action
of some kind. Once the bill is voted upon, a majority is assured.DISCHARGED EMPLOYEE

MISSISSIPPI FLOODMemphis—Three hundred and fifty fighting Wednesday worked
swiftly to prevent the steadily rising Mississippi river from flooding thousands of acres of farm lands.Although the river was well past
the 42-foot stage today, Harry N.
Pharr, channel engineer, expressed his belief that it would stay within the "safe" stage of 45 feet. The crises
in the situation will be reached Saturday, Pharr believes.2,500,000 MEN
IDLE IN ENGLANDLondon—Thousands of shipbuilding workers quit Wednesday, according to a statement from the ministry of labor. Three hundred thousand in all are expected to walk out following wage cuts.This strike is separate from the lockout of 600,000 workers in the engineering trades which was proclaimed yesterday by the engineering
employers' federation.In all, disputes in the engineering
and allied trades will have added
1,200,000 men to England's army of unemployed, bringing the total to nearly 2,500,000.Moore, clerk in the bonding department of the Harris Trust and Savings company went to the office of R. H. Brunkhurst, the auditor, and said:"I quit the game cold. I can steal $100,000 before you audit the books
again. Save me from this. Send me to the pen. I have already taken $15,000."Moore said the only successful
gamble he made was when he hired
the best physician in the city to save the life of his infant son."I won that time" he said. "Now I'll pay."

MOTHER OF DEAD YOUTH OPENS WAR ON SLOT MACHINES

Mrs. C. Reinke Causes Arrest
of John Calmes on Gambling ChargeWaging open warfare on use of slot machines which she said were
the cause of the suicide of her son, Ray Reinke, who ended his life with a revolver recently, Mrs. C. Reinke, 1080 Packard st., swore out a warrant against John Calmes, owner of a soft drink establishment at Calmes corners, charging him with using his building for gambling purposes.Sheriff P. G. Schwartz made a search of the place but was unable to find any slot machines. Calmes appeared before Judge A. M. Spencer
in municipal court Wednesday morning and pleaded not guilty to the gambling house charge. His case was adjourned until April 7.Mrs. Reinke declares that her son was short in his accounts with his employer several times because of an alleged mania for playing slot
machines and that she had made up
the amounts. She had pleaded with him to cease his gambling but he always went back to it.Mrs. Reinke attempted to find out where slot machines were operating and intended to file complaints so the temptation could be removed from her son's way. She was taken ill and had to give up her fight temporarily
and in the meantime the youth
gambed with his employer's money
again and committed his rash act. It is the desire of Mrs. Reinke to prevent other young men from a similar fate.It was stated by Mrs. Reinke that young men had visited places suspected of maintaining the gambling
devices at her request to obtain evidence.LLOYAL AIDE DIES
TO SAVE MASTERBerlin—Schalki-Bork, a Russian Lieutenant, was arrested Wednesday
for the murder of Vladimir Nabokov,
who gave his life to save Professor Paul Miliukoff, former minister of foreign affairs in the Kerensky
government.A monarchist plot to kill Miliukoff
with the Russian military leader
addressing a Russian meeting here Tuesday night nearly succeeded.Two officers of the old school rose
from their places in the audience
which crowded Philharmonic hall and fired at Prof. Miliukoff. The speaker
dropped to the platform and Nabokov,
who was secretary of state in
the Kerensky government, rushed to his aid
throwing himself between Miliukoff
and the assassins' bullets. He was struck with several shots and fell
dead across the body of his chief.SOVIET DELEGATES ON

Bomb Is Hurlled Into Meeting Of Green Bay Drys

One Man Slightly Burned by Explosion of Can of Powder in Meeting Called to Hear
Address by "Pussyfoot"
Johnson.By United Press Leased Wire
Green Bay—"Nothing more
than a practical joke," was the version Wednesday of the "bomb"
explosion which was thought to have been intended for William E. "Pussyfoot" Johnson, prohibition lecturer, at a church here Tuesday night. The "bomb"
police say, was nothing more than a small fire cracker hidden
in a small tin can."Real Wisconsin people didn't place that bomb," said Johnson.
"They are not phasers and unlike
the wine and beer people, want to support the law. I've no statement to make about this affair. I'm sorry it happened and glad
no one was hurt. Ask the wine
and beer people why they did it.
They are the ones who ought to make a statement."Johnson said he did not believe
the "bomb" had been "planted"
by some practical joker. He said
it contained two pounds of powder.Green Bay—Police are conducting
a sweeping investigation here Wednesday to locate the person who threw the bomb into the midst of an audience of 500 persons at a church
here during a prohibition rally by William E. "Pussyfoot" Johnson.One woman fainted and a general
panic ensued as persons made a general break for the nearest exit. F. J.
Walker, ran down the aisle, grabbed
the smoking tubular and made a dash
for the door but it exploded in his hand. Investigation proved that the bomb was the work of an amateur—
a small tin can filled with black powder. Shaking of the bomb had caused it to fizzle without any great damage, other than burning Walker quite severely about the hands and face.Although the bomb was evidently intended for "Pussyfoot" Johnson,
he was giving an address in another
church and Lewis J. Holton, Spokane, prohibition worker, had the floor.Although the church filled with smoke and odorous fumes from the exploded powder it was a notable fact
that not more than ten people left
the building.Mr. Holton after a brief respite during which he called attention to the damage the smoke caused by such occurrences, concluded his talk.Police were called and the remains of the bomb turned over to them for evidence.A sweeping investigation is promised.

Illinois Miners and Operators Fail to Reach Agreement in Meeting

BIG STOCK IN RESERVE

Nation is in Better Condition
Than Ever Before to Stand StrikeChicago—Meeting of Illinois mine
operators and union representatives
here Wednesday failed in its efforts
to avert the strike of coal miners set
for April 1.After a session of nearly an hour,
the conference adjourned "subject to call." It was stated that the meeting was merely a formal session,
held to comply with the present contract requirements and that no progress toward making a separate peace in Illinois in the coal war, was made.Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois union, in addressing the meeting, upheld the stand taken by the United Mine Workers of America national organization in favor of a strike."The strike would not have been necessary if the operators of Ohio
and Pennsylvania had kept their contract with the miners to draw up a new agreement," Farrington told the meeting.FARRINGTON MADE IT PLAIN THAT ILLI-NOIS MINERS WOULD RIDE ALONG WITH THE NATIONAL ORGANIZATION ON THE STRIKE
UNLESS AN "EMERGENCY" AROSE."I cannot negotiate a new agreement with you, because the national policy committee of the union had decided against any separate state
agreements," Farrington told the operators. "I merely called this meeting as a matter of form because our contract requires that we shall meet prior to its expiration April 1.""I am going to abide by the decisions of the policy committee unless an emergency arises.""Just what do you mean by an emergency?" one operator asked the union chief.Farrington refused to answer his statement. It was understood that the case of further difficulties with the national organization on the strike of Illinois miners, Farrington would be in a position to resume negotiations
with Illinois operators for a separate peace.

KINSMAN TAKES SHARP STAND ON SUNDAY CLOSING

Candidate for Mayor Says He Will Not Interfere With Recreation

"It is impossible to make a man good by force or by law," declared D. O. Kinsman, candidate for mayor, to a good sized audience in the Third ward school Tuesday evening. "The thought of closing our places of amusement on a Sunday business day does not occur to me until it was suggested by rumor," he said. "It is not my intention to close these places on Sunday. I realize a man cannot do his best work without some recreation and it is not a question of when a man takes his amusement but the character of it that determines its influence upon him. I appreciate that a great many of our good citizens have no other time than Sunday to give to pleasure, amusement, and to recreation and it is a question having it on Sunday or not at all. What we, the people of Appleton desire is a good clean city in which to live and raise our children. The peace and order of the community must be protected against the evil deer in order that the common good be promoted. But this is not a question of Sunday closing. A mayor is mayor of the whole city representing all the voters. No citizen of Appleton need fear that if elected mayor, I shall be the representative of any class, clique or institution, but shall to the best of my ability promote the highest welfare of the city as a whole."

He also declared that the congestion in the schools should be a problem of very careful study for there are those who are deeply interested in the religious as well as the intellectual training of their children. The question should not be solved without giving careful and sympathetic consideration to all groups that are so deeply interested in the right solution of the school problem, he said. Dr. Kinsman also emphasized the importance of a careful study of tax problems with the view to reducing the burden upon the taxpayer.

BOY LEAVES SICK BED TO WIN MUSIC MEMORY CONTEST

Wilder Schmalz is Hero of Contest — Lincoln School Cops Honors

Wilder Schmalz, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Schmalz, 675 Drew-st., of the seventh grade of Lincoln school, left a sick bed to take part in the music memory contest Monday evening, and wrote the most perfect paper of any of the 300 contestants. Wilder went to the contest under the care of the doctor, and was taken home as soon as the contest was over. In spite of his illness he wrote an absolutely perfect paper in which not an error was detected.

School standings in the contest as determined in the final test Monday night are: First, Lincoln school; second, First ward school; third, Fifth ward school; fourth, Columbus school; fifth, Fourth district school; and sixth, Third ward school. These schools will get the prizes which have been offered by local firms. The standings of the schools in the final contest, plus the standings in the preliminary tests determined their places.

Individual prizes were given to the three children who rank highest in each district. In each case the second and third prizes are of equal value, and the giving of the first prizes was determined by the standings of the papers, due to a few points difference in grades. The individual prize winner who was not affiliated with any of the schools participating in the contest will be announced later.

The prize winners are as follows: Second district first, Wilder Schmalz, who wrote the most perfect paper in the whole city. He will be given first choice of the four first prizes; second place was a tie between Ione Steenis, Clarice McMillan, Marie McCloskey, Dorothy Tritton and Leone Kaffarnus. In appreciation of Mrs. Schumaker's work in connection with the civic department of the club, the members of that department presented her with a corsage of sweet peas.

LIONS ENTERTAIN GREEN BAY GUESTS

Appleton Lions and Lionesses will roar a lusty greeting to their Green Bay compatriots at a dinner and program in the Venetian room of the Sherman house at 6:35 Wednesday evening. Green Bay Lions and their wives will be guests of the newly organized Appleton den. About 75 visitors are expected.

An excellent program of music, toasts, formal and informal addresses has been arranged. The principal speaker will be John M. Callahan of Milwaukee, one of the best known humorists and speakers in the state. The program also will include readings by Mrs. John Engle and solos by Harry Wilson.

STILL NO TRACE OF BEAR CREEK FARMER

Fred Stapel of Bear Creek, who mysteriously disappeared early in February while on a visit to the village of Bear Creek, has not yet been located notwithstanding the vigilant search on the part of relatives.

Arthur Stapel, a brother in the employ of the Walter Implement and Auto Co., noticed Tuesday in a Milwaukee daily paper that the body of an unidentified man had been taken from Milwaukee river where it had evidently been for several weeks and upon taking the matter up with Appleton police department learned the description of the man did not correspond with that of his brother. A strange thing about the disappearance of Stapel was that his horse returned home without him and with very little damage to the cutter.

MORE FARMERS IN COUNTY TURN TO ALFALFA CULTURE

Paul O. Nyhus and Reid Murray Are Speakers at Greenville Farm Meeting

More farmers in Outagamie-co. will grow alfalfa as a feed crop for cattle this summer than in the past as the result of farmers' meeting at Pegel hall, Greenville, Monday, attended by a large number of residents of that locality.

A. O. Collentine, dairy expert of the college of agriculture, Madison, was unable to attend as scheduled and Reid Murray of Oshkosh, farm agent of the Old-Commercial National bank, took his place.

HAVE RIGHT SOIL

Speaking on the possibilities of alfalfa culture, Paul O. Nyhus, farm agent of the First National bank, told the farmers living in the towns of Greenville, Ellington and Dale that they were fortunate in having a subsoil containing limestone. Mr. Nyhus explained the soil survey of this locality made recently and showed how the limestone requirement is met by the layer of earth beneath. He said alfalfa could be grown successfully on most well drained soils and urged that the hardy Grimm variety of seed be used. Inoculating materials for the seed may be secured through him at the bank during seeding time, he said.

A number of leading alfalfa growers of the county related their experiences and urged other farmers to try the culture of this crop. Samples of soil were brought to the meeting by many in response to the offer of Mr. Nyhus to make tests for acidity.

NEED BETTER HERDS

Use of better bulls, forming of cow testing associations to cull out unprofitable cows and feeding of full rations to cows were the essentials named by Mr. Murray for more profits from dairy cattle. He explained the demand for well bred cows and the field this market offered to dairy-men.

Mr. Murray said good grade cattle are selling at $150 a head and that the average price for others is $90 to $100. Harry Leppia, secretary of Fox River Valley Guernsey Breeders' association, announced that Guernsey cows are bringing $75 to $125.

An educational campaign to discourage use of butter substitutes was discussed by Malachi Ryan, who is chairman of a committee of Holstein and Guernsey breeders appointed to combat the use of oleomargarine and other such products on the market.

CULBERTSON PRESIDES

H. M. Culbertson, chairman of Greenville town board, presided. He expressed his appreciation of interest shown by farmers in the meeting and voiced the hope of more such conferences. He said the only way to be freed from the higher taxes of today is to use better and more efficient farm methods to produce a greater

ROTARY CLUB IS HOST TO LIONS AT TUESDAY LUNCHEON

Interesting Program is Presented at Meeting — End Scout Campaign

The Rotary club welcomed the newly organized den of Lions into Appleton's club life at a rousing luncheon and meeting in the French room of the Sherman house Tuesday noon.

About 100 men attended the affair. Lee C. Rasey, president of the Rotary club, welcomed the Lions and expressed the hope that the two organizations would find it possible to cooperate in efforts which are for betterment of the community.

Dr. J. A. Holmes, president of the Lions, responded in behalf of his club, outlining the history of Lionism and also expressing a desire for cooperation. There were a few short talks by other Rotarians and Lions. Howard "Cub" Buck and Harry Oaks, representing the Rotarians and the Lions, engaged in a humorous comparison of the "brotherly love" of members of the two organizations.

Rotarians made arrangements for a banquet and program in the Sherman house next Tuesday evening for Mr. and Mrs. William Ryerson of Duluth. Mr. Ryerson was largely responsible for the entertainment provided Appleton delegates at the meeting in Duluth recently.

Reports on the campaign to raise the Boy Scout budget for 1922 were read and Rotarians were instructed to complete their work and make their final reports by next Tuesday.

More and Better Light

FOR more than 30 years the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has been a big refiner of kerosene oil.

During all this time there has been a steady improvement in the quality of its product. This improvement has been more marked in the past ten or fifteen years during which time the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has developed methods of manufacturing to eliminate the danger of lamp explosions.

While the kerosene has been improved the devices for using it have remained unchanged.

Recognizing the fact that the users of Perfection Kerosene were unable to get a maximum service from the oil they burned, and realizing that the failure was due not to the oil but to the devices, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) set its experts to work to find a better burner and a more efficient chimney.

These men, working with the manufacturers of burners and chimneys, have succeeded in developing devices which increased largely the efficiency of the oil.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) does not sell lamps. But it believes that the users of lamps should be informed as to how to get the best results from the kerosene they use.

To accomplish this result this Company is distributing sixty thousand of the new burners and chimneys to dealers handling kerosene that they may demonstrate to their patrons how to get the most light from Perfection Kerosene by using appliances correctly designed.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has arranged with leading chimney manufacturers to stamp chimneys made in accordance with the design and specifications with the following trade mark:

This is but one of the many ways in which the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) seeks to increase the efficiency of the service it is rendering the people of the territory it serves.

THE TARIFF OUTLOOK

The country is, it is said, facing the enactment of the highest tariff in its history, higher than the famous "tariff of abominations." There is to be a considerable curtailment of the free list. Hides for the first time since the enactment of the Dingley tariff, are to be taxed. There are to be extraordinarily high taxes on wool, which is now on the free list. These wool duties will not only impose a heavy burden on the people—including the farmers, in whose interest they are supposed to be levied, though few of them are wool growers, but still discriminate, almost certainly disastrously, against the carded wool industry. The hide duties will in no way benefit the farmer, but rather the reverse, since they will necessitate the imposition of compensatory duties on boots and shoes.

The attempt is to satisfy all classes without dissatisfying any—an impossible task. This proposed tariff is an interesting response to the demand for lower taxes. Congress is proposing to lower taxes by raising them. It is a dangerous experiment, even from the merely political point of view, as should be realized by all who are old enough to remember what the Payne-Aldrich tariff did to the Republican party in 1912.

Just now there is much talk about collecting the debts due to this government and to the American people from abroad, debts which, if paid at all, must be largely paid in goods. Yet we are proposing to impose extraordinarily high, and in some cases prohibitive taxes on the medium in which our debts must be paid. We are told almost every day that prosperity is just around the corner, and indeed that its advance guard has already reached us. The gospel of optimism is being very strenuously preached. Yet all this recovery has been under the moderate Underwood tariff, for the repeal of which there has been no demand worth considering. Such as there is has been wholly manufactured by our tariff makers. High taxes certainly will not hasten prosperity's somewhat lagging steps. Nothing would contribute so much to it as to allow the people, as far as possible, to keep their own money in their own pockets. But that is not the Fordney idea.

MARGOT LOOKS TOWARD HENGLAND
A woman who says what she thinks may be popular for a while, but cannot stay popular, as her enemies soon exceed her friends in number. She always can depend on an audience, if what she says contains some interest.

Margot Asquith is the clever type of woman, who thinks keenly and sometimes talks sharply. Among her pleasant and wise sayings there are a few caustic remarks. Persons who are hit, or think they are hit, by her missiles, feel a sort of enmity, even toward her intellectual brightness.

Now, take, for instance, what Margot says about us as a nation, "I think," she declares, "your progress is in advance of your civilization." If our sense of humor were not in advance of our progress, we might take offense at that.

And she asks "Why is it that the newspapers are less intelligent than the reporters who work for them?" "Their intelligence," she adds, "never seems to get into the newspapers." The reporters write this comment, slyly hoping the managing and city editors will read and think about it.

Margot is casting her eyes toward Merrie Hengland. She starts for home at the end of this month. She has, to a certainty, formed certain ideas about us that no other visitor has thought of, and if they are critical we should be glad to have her express them. If there is one thing that we most prefer to hear, it is the justly critical, as it does us good.

We have been pleased with Margot's visit. Her interviews have been quite diverting. If she returns to this country for a lecture tour, we hope she will still feel free to be frank in her interpretation of our shortcomings and eccentricities.

CODDLING CRIMINALS

In the case of a young clerk who accumulated a fortune of $100,000 by the simple expedient of forging his employer's name, a New York court recently took a vigorous stand on the subject of coddling such offenders. The young man spent none of the money, but continued to live on a scale permitted by his salary. When his shortage was discovered, while he was enjoying a vacation, he made no excuse save that he derived some pleasure from counting the money. He returned every cent of it to his employer and threw himself upon the mercy of the court. The judge, after sentencing him to an indeterminate term in the reformatory, explained his decision thus:

We can not coddle criminals. Young men must understand that crime will not be condoned because they make restitution when caught. It is the purpose of the law to prevent crime. It is far more important to punish than to let young men go and tell their friends they beat the case. That would encourage and not discourage crime.

The tendency to overlook first offenses, especially when full restitution is made, is generally recognized as not without its value. The first offender is usually a person incapable of seeing the true nature of wrong in the abstract. He requires close contact with it to be convinced that what people say about honesty is true. Many potential crooks have been saved by a little kindness and lenity at the right time, but the thing can be carried too far. The worth of crime punishment as a deterrent to crime must count for something. In this case the judge seems to have had some suspicion that a man who would hide $100,000 of his employer's money with the confessed intention of diverting it to his own uses at some time, is not to be harmed much by confinement and opportunity to think over the character of his theft.

BUYING

News from certain sections of the middle west indicates sales of farm implements are 50 per cent more than a year ago. This is a direct result of the rise in prices of farm products.

The country cannot have good times until the farmers' buying power is restored. On our farms live 32,000,000 people, nearly a third of the total population.

When they stop buying, the others have a dull market for what their factories and mills produce.

TODAY'S POEM

By Eberton Bralcy

EMPLOYEES

Ten million people are working for me,
Working for all the things which
They buy by the hand and the toll by sea,
They bring from the ends of earth
Food and raiment and furniture,
Fabrics of gorgeous hues,
Unguent, spices and perfumes pure—
Whatever I want and use.

Ten million people are working for me,
Maybe it's even more,
Rusting sugar and rice and tea,
Digging me coal and ore,
The painters paint and the writers write
And the singers of songs divine
Make lovely music for my delight—
They are troubadours of mine!

I mail a letter—ten thousand men
Will speed it along the way;
I board a train or a ship, and then
Faithfully, night and day,
Thousands of tolls, rustling to me well
Wherever I choose to go;
The Lamp of Aladdin had no spell
Like the magical spell I know.

The furrow is turned, the furnaces glare
And the factories hum, that I
May eat, have shelter, and clothes to wear.
So, under the arching sky
On farm and city, by land and sea
In every clime and nation,
Ten million people are working for me—
And that is civilization!

Habit and Health

The wholesale sounding out of young men in the late war brought to light the fact that the youth of the cities were as fit, in strict physical sense, as the youth of the rural areas. The records of extreme old age show little advantage as between the city and the country. Mass for mass, it is hardly to be believed that the young folk of the cities, or the old or the middle-aged folk either, are not the equals, by most standards of worth, of their neighbors of the farms and villages. The truth is that health is not a regional matter, but a matter of complex elements, with most of which the individual will and but less greatly to do. Heredity is in it, of course, but temperance and industry—the latter more important than the bulk of man has ever realized—are tremendous factors, and they are about as easily adopted as habits by the people of the cities as by the people of the country of this day. There is good reason why every lover of the open country should take himself thither as much as he can, but he need not feel that it is necessary to his well-being. Whoever makes the most of his environment, gives heed to his habits and trains himself to some occupation for the most of his waking hours, may fairly expect a generous share of health and of relish in life, wherever he chooses to make his habitation.—INDIANAPOLIS NEWS (Ind.)

WHEN YOU DON'T FEEL UP TO IT

There may be rare souls who really and truly like to hoe potatoes, weed onions, bathe, bake or sew, but they are strange anomalies. When not canting for the moral edification of the younger generation, most of us have as little love for work as we have respect for what the copy books used to call honest labor. The universal game is to get along with the least possible amount of work. The popular way of playing the game is by dignifying one's play or game by referring to it casually as "my work." Thus we hear many players telling of "working late at the office"—an artless listener might suppose they had been scrubbing the floor or washing the windows, the actually they have been just juggling at the books.

No other one is so constantly troubled with that tired feeling as the fellow who won't work. There is precious little difference between the tired business man and the genuine hobo, I mean as to what ails the fellow. The hobo fairly and squarely repudiates all work in all its way and forms; the tired business man tries to jolly himself that his favorite game is work.

There is no time when we live without work so sorely need work as at the very moment when we feel too tired to undertake the slightest exertion. The most serious mistake we make about this is the misinterpretation of our own sensations. When a sedentary man or woman feels just fagged out and worn and weary at the end of a day's play and years mightily to sink into a soft chair or even to retire too early to bed, then is the time when some real muscle for exercise will do the most good. Ah, but it takes determination and will power and faith in the restorative value of exercise to drive one to work at such a time! The universal impulse and practice is to chuck it and go on with the deadly sitting. Don't I know? No one hates work more than I do, yet I fancy few nonworkers derive more benefit from bitter exercise year after year than I do.

The notion that exercise must be made attractive and enjoyable as such games as tennis, pitching horseshoes, hiking, playing ball, bowling, or for the old geezers golf, is all right—anything that will persuade the chronic sinner to use his muscles. But do not imagine that because games are good one does not derive equal benefit from an equivalent amount of muscular activity in the form of drab work. Swinging the axe on knotty oak unquestionably betters a man's health just as much as swinging the bat in a game of ball. The great drawback about the playing games for exercise is that it is seldom possible for one to get into a game every day. It is always possible to take exercise at home, no matter what the condition of the weather or the season or the individual's time allowance may be.

The sad excuse which too many otherwise intelligent folks offer for neglecting exercise is that they haven't time. One might with equal justification upon some of the most famous men behind their reason why little boys neglect to wash behind their ears, but that they haven't time. Send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope and I'll undertake to prove to you that you're just beguiling yourself about lack of time. My way it takes only 15 minutes, and when you have nothing on.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Should Children Eat Bananas?

I have a healthy boy of three years. Should I give him ripe bananas? If so, how often and in what form?—(Queerue).

Answer—Baked bananas may be given once or twice a week to a healthy child over three years of age. Raw bananas if well ripened, that is, the skins well browned, may be given once or twice a week to children over five years of age. Bananas is very nutritious food; baked banana is more easily digested by a young child than raw banana.

That Tired Feeling

Would you be kind enough to prescribe something for that tired feeling which is caused, I believe by a sluggish liver?—(M. S.).

Answer—Sluggish liver is right, but why live so sluggishly? Exercise is cheap and there is no social degradation involved in indulging in it every day to the point of free sweating.

Vegetable for Baby

Is it safe to feed a baby 10 months old canned vegetables? Is there any harm in eating raw oatmeal?—(Mrs. W. C.).

Answer—Canned vegetables are as safe as fresh vegetables, the best reason for not giving them to a child over two years old from eating raw oatmeal; the oatmeal had better be cooked for younger children.

Foul Perspiration

Kindly tell me how to overcome foul perspiration in the armpits.—(L. C. D.).

Answer—Sponge the dry armpits once each alternate day for three or four times with brush or wisps of cotton wet with a solution of half an ounce of aluminum chloride in three ounces of rain or distilled water. Let this dry well before dressing.

Resume of American and Foreign Newspaper Opinion

"GET-RICH QUICK" HAYWOOD

There's a new get-rich quick scheme afoot, which if it can be just made to work, will, the SAGINAW NEW COURIER predicts, discount the best efforts of our own ingenious promoters. It will, in the bargain transform the "dear departed" William D. Haywood from a disgraced American I. W. W. into a "Russian Carnegie." And also—if only it can be made to work—it will relieve the United States of five thousand or so apostles of unrest and give them a chance to work out their own salvation and establish the righteousness of their own particular brand of economic freedom.

Chiefly because of the last-mentioned possibility, American editors are inclined to hail with satisfaction the granting of a coal and iron concession by Lenin to Big Bill Haywood. But there are strings attached to the concession which from the American viewpoint raise a serious doubt of Haywood's unqualified success as a capitalist industry.

The projected enterprise involves coal mines and iron works in the Ural Mountains, and the stipulations, as the NASHVILLE BANNER quotes them, require "the bringing to Russia of 4,800 fully qualified American workmen with a technical personnel to operate the properties. Further, 'each workman must spend $1000 on the state to abide by the code of the Soviet in regard to labor and its products.' The Soviet government is to spend $300,000 on the project, and 'agrees to furnish wood for houses, give 27,000 acres for cultivation, and allow the men part of the production to carry on further work.'

The motives of Lenin's "generosity" in the matter are apparent to the SAGINAW NEW COURIER, for it points out, he can "afford to be generous. He has idle iron mines on his hands and it wouldn't cost his proletarian government anything to give them to anybody." However, even under the conditions attached to the returns of the enterprise, fifty per cent of which go to the government, and in addition the usual seven per cent tax on industry, the slogan of "get-rich quick" Haywood "and his fellow capitalists expect to make their exile profitable as well as secure," and the MILWAUKEE SENTINEL remarks that "he is laying the foundation of what may become great wealth and international fame as a captain of industry," and his transformation "from I. W. W. leader to capitalist, which in its incipient stages was commented upon some of the new-fangled and complete and definite." The CHICAGO POST notes "it is a great joke to see an I-Wont-Work turned into the capitalist concessionaire of an autocratic government," but to the NEW YORK TRIBUNE it is the refinement of cruelty—no greater proof of Lenin's "tyranny" has yet come than this latest act of "setting Big Bill Haywood to work."

According to the SAGINAW NEW COURIER, the husky bull jumper to the Ural coal mines to crack the whip over 4,800 American I. W. W. who want to be bossed by a true comrade, if it proves successful, "will be no mean achievement."

But, like that uncompromising recipe for rabbit pie, before he can "crack his whip over 4,800 American I. W. W. and thus fulfill the prophetic utterance of the Russian proletariat," he will have to overcome a host of "the he will be a hard master and will ultimately develop into a slave driver," Haywood must first corral the 4,800. And there lies the difficulty in the opinion of the American press. For some reason, apparently, "Russian labor is not wanted in this business," a peculiar condition which the IDAHO STATESMAN (Boise) thinks may perhaps arise because "Lenin has recovered the Russian proletariat has its shortcomings," and "he looks covetously upon the efficient workmen in the American mills." To the STATESMAN "there is something drollly sad," in a situation in which "poor starving Russian workmen (and they are starving unless we have been misled) are to have their much needed jobs given to imported laborers from America." The Statesman adds that "it is a matter of doubt. But on the other hand the NEW YORK TIMES publishes an appeal to American workers issued in Moscow by the All-Russian Central Council of Trade Unions beseeching them to 'join our ranks,' and extending a pleading welcome to these American workers who will 'contribute their experience in organization and highly qualified methods of labor' for 'through our joint efforts we shall overcome the initial difficulties and arouse to life one of the richest coal and iron districts in the world.'"

"Haywood and his associates ought to be able now, if ever, to procure the men they want from this country to start things going," the MINNEAPOLIS TRIBUNE believes, for "they have the advantage of considerable unemployment and its attendant unrest." But the COLUMBUS DISPATCH considers it "a safe prediction that no 4,800 qualified American workmen will leave this country under the terms of the concession," for "there is nothing to lure them to Russia."

There are, however, the CHICAGO TRIBUNE points out, "a great many radical miners and iron workers in this country," who profess to believe in communism, and who have advocated the overthrow of the American government and the American social system by force." Since in their doctrine "there is nothing worth while in this tyrannical government to keep them," Haywood and "Soviet Russia beckon them to freedom and ease and luxury," and the TRIBUNE contends that "if they believe in the theory they have adopted, they will go. The best feature of the project, as the VANCOUVER PROVINCE sees it, 'is the opportunity afforded to put these doctrines to the test,' and, as the SCHENECTADY GAZETTE says, 'if the theory is sound, these few thousands who get in at the start will be the gainers. Further, there will be nothing to them the prestige that is

He Wondered if we were giving Hats Away

A stranger in Appleton stood near our wrapping counter.

He was amazed to see 7 new Spring Hats go into 7 bags in rapid succession and go out thru the door.

"It beats anything I ever saw," he exclaimed. "Are you selling these hats or are you giving them away?"

We are not only selling hats—but we are also duplicating our orders and here it's only March.

The reason for this lies in our hat cases and in our prices. Trimble Spring Soft Hats $4, $5, $6 and $7.

Enemy Of Cooties

San Mateo, Cal.—Ex-doughboys, let's give three cheers for one of the greatest heroes of the world war!

He's Dr. Dwight Pierce, who lives here.

He didn't capture a machine-gun nest single-handed or run with dispatches under shell fire.

But he invented a method of exterminating cooties that doesn't cause your uniform to shrink so it looks as if it had been made for your kid brother.

He's just completed a book on "Sanitary Entomology," devoted to cooties and cooties' kindred.

Pierce, an entomologist, was employed by the government during the war to investigate disease-carrying vermin.

MORE DANGEROUS THAN GAS
He says the cootie was more dangerous than lethal gas or high-explosive bombs. Because cooties carried typhus and trench fever.

When Pierce had to have a human subject to experiment on in finding a delousing method, an aged man, with a son in the army, submitted himself.

The subject had to undergo frightful pain, but he bore it stoically, thinking he would make life easier for his son overseas and his son's comrades.

The experiments resulted in a method of dry cleaning that kills the cooties but saves the uniform.

Agas buddies, three cheers for the cootie fighter!

SCHOOL EXHIBIT REFLECTED GREAT CREDIT ON PUPILS

Amazing Array of Articles Displayed by Pupils of Vocational School

Kaukauna.—The annual exhibit of Kaukauna Vocational school Tuesday afternoon and evening demonstrated the ability of the students as well as the efficiency of those who supervise the work. Great crowds of people attended the exhibit, especially in the evening when the pupils wore the garments they made, while a supervisor stood near to explain each garment in detail.

The articles on display during the day formed only a small part of the entire output of the school during the last year. From the machine shop and the wood working departments such things as a drill press, an automatic hack saw, drafting table, clamps, jack screws, and vises were shown. Plans for work were made first and wooden casting models were fashioned. The actual casting was done in the Kaukauna Machine works. Every vice now is use in the school was planned and made by students.

Library tables, ferneries, smoking stands and fancy table and floor lamps were included in the woodworking department exhibit. In every instance the article reflected careful workmanship.

From the domestic department there was an array of millinery and dress-making and canned fruit "put up" according to several different methods.

At 5 o'clock in the evening the display of garments on living models began. In the children's group, 10 models were used; for apron and gingham displays, 22 models were used. Fourteen models demonstrated garments "made over" from old clothes and material. New wool and silk gowns and dresses were shown on 15 different models.

The students who finished work for the exhibit were under the direction of the following teachers: Mrs. Grant Powell, Appleton; Mrs. William J. Men, Mrs. Frank Rockenbach, Mrs. William Klumb, Jr., Miss Blanche Gerend, A. T. Hudson and Charles Schultz. Miss Margaret Birong is the supervising teacher.

STEVENS POINT WANTS TO SAVE FIRE ALARM SYSTEM

By United Press Leased Wire
Madison, Wis.—The city of Stevens Point today began a fight to retain its fire-alarm system.

In a petition to the state railroad commission, it asked that the Wisconsin Telephone Company, which supplies it with service, be prohibited from withdrawing the arrangement under which the Stevens Point "hello girls" has been notifying the various fire-fighters of the city in case of a conflagration.

When a fire is reported to the exchange, under the present arrangement, the central calls the engine-house, both fire stations, and the city chief at once. The company last week, however, notified the city that it was withdrawing service in regard to fires.

This withdrawal will endanger greatly lives and property of citizens, the city declares in the petition.

"COMMUNITY STILL" SEIZED AT SUPERIOR

Superior, Wis.—The "spring clean up" by Sheriff George Ostrom was begun Monday when he and several deputies raided several places in the village of Oliver, once famous for its saloons and dives in the days when Bid Scotch and Three Star Hennessy were familiar names.

Five men were arrested and arraigned on a charge of violating the liquor laws. A good sized still and quantities of mash and alleged moonshine were included in the "evidence" confiscated.

According to Sheriff Ostrom, the village across from the steel mills on the St. Louis river is a veritable still in itself, concluding with the statement that most everyone in the village seemed to claim a common interest in the large plant which the authorities found.

This is only the beginning, the sheriff said, and visits will be made to

FURS AND MYSTERY
By A. Carstensen
Appleton's Furrier

The constantly growing scarcity of furs will eventually lead to the establishment of fur farms. In fact, the number of fur farms being established in the Alaska and Yukon territory is increasing each year.

The successful breeding of fur-bearing animals in captivity presents many difficulties. Take for example the establishing of a fox farm; a single pair of silver or black foxes represents an investment of well into five figures. After securing a pair of foxes it is very possible that they may not survive in captivity. This would make necessary the securing of another pair at great expense and with much delay.

Although foxes and some few other animals are now being raised in captivity with fair success, it is not likely that their numbers will be so great as to lower present prices when placed on the market.

It is fortunate that these animal farms can furnish even a limited number of skins, for the newspapers tell us that there is likely to be but little trapping done in the far North for the next ten years, epidemics of influenza having nearly wiped out whole tribes of Eskimo and Indian trappers.

In 1910, to save the rapidly disappearing seals, the United States government took charge of the seal industry on the Pribiloff Islands. Under the watchful eyes of the Bureau of Fisheries, which has charge of the herds of seals on the islands, the numbers have increased steadily and it is probable that the price of seal will be reduced within the next few years.

Until the supply of skins can be increased—either through fur farming or governmental protection—it will be necessary for you to select furs with both eyes for dishonest fur dealers will continue to gouge the public just as long as they can foster upon it imitations at genuine prices.

Beware of the Wolf in Sheep's Clothing.

THE "Sweetness" of Low Price Never Equals the Bitter

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Significant but apparently trivial differences of taste have suggested to MARK SABRE that he and his wife MABEL, fail to understand each other. After eight years of married life he knows that his delights in poetry, in whimsical humor and in democratic ideas are not shared by the prosaic and snobbish Mabel. Sabre has a comfortable position in the firm of Fortune, East and Sabre, a church and school supply house. The firm is dominated by Rev. Sebastian Fortune, chief shareholder.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

Sabre had been promised full partnership by Mr. Fortune. He desired it very greatly. The apportionment of duties in the establishment was that Sabre managed the publishing department. Twynning supervised the factory and workshops wherein the ecclesiastical and scholastic furniture was produced, and Fortune supervised his two principals and every least employee and smallest detail of all the business.

In 1912 Sabre felt that he had now brought the publishing into line with the established departments. He had emphasized the firm's reputation in this activity by the considerable success that attended two textbooks bearing (one in collaboration) his own name, "Sabre and Owen's Elementary Mathematics" and "Sabre's Modern History."

CHAPTER VI

Mabel called Sabre's school textbooks "these lesson books." After she had thus referred to them two or three times he gave up trying to interest her in them. The expression hurt him, but when he thought upon it he reasoned with himself that it had no cause to be hurt.

Later he never mentioned "England" to her. But he most desperately wanted to talk about it to someone. He was not actively aware of it, but what, in those years, he came to care for as a child craves food was sympathy of mind.

He found it in Penny Green, with what Mabel called "the most extraordinary people." "What you can find in that Mr. Fergus and that young Perch and his everlasting mother," she used to say, "I simply cannot imagine."

Mr. Fergus, who lived next door down the Green, was a little man with gray whiskers and always in a gray suit. He had a large and very red wife and six thin and rather yellowish daughters.

And there were the Perches— "Young Perch and that everlasting old mother of his," as Mabel called them.

Sabre always spoke of them as "Young Rod, Pole or Perch," and "Old Mrs. Rod, Pole or Perch." This was out of what Mabel called his childish and incomprehensible habit of giving nicknames—High Jinks and Low Jinks the outstanding and never-forgotten example of it.

Mrs. Perch was a fragile little body whose life should have been and could have been divided between her bed and a bath chair.

She was intensely weak-sighted, but she never could find her glasses, and she kept looking everything that would look, but she never could find her keys. She held off all acquaintances by the rigid handle of "that" before their names, but she was very fond of "that Mr. Sabre," and Sabre returned a great affection for her.

Young Perch was a tall and slight young man with a happy laugh and an air which suggested to Sabre, after a puzzlement, that his spirit was only alighted in his body as a bird alights and swings upon a twig, not engrossed in his body.

Sabre was extraordinarily attracted by the devotion between the pair. Their interests, their habits, their thoughts were so widely separated and yet each was wholly and completely bound up in the other. When Sabre sat and talked with Young Perch of an evening, old Mrs. Perch would sit with them, next her son, in an armchair asleep. At intervals she would start awake and say querulously, "Now, I suppose I must be driven off to bed."

Young Perch, not pausing in what he might be saying, would stretch a hand and lay it on his mother's. Mrs. Perch, as though Freddie's hand touched away enormous weariness and care, would sigh restfully and sleep again.

It gave Sabre extraordinary sensations. If he had been asked to name his particular friends these were the friends he would have named. He saw them constantly. Infrequently he saw another. One suddenly she came back into his life.

Nona returned into his life.

PART TWO
NONA
CHAPTER I

pleasant lanes towards Tidborough one fine morning in the early summer of 1912, was met in his thoughts by observation, as he topped a rise, of the galloping progress of the light railway that was to link up the Penny Green Garden Home with Tidborough and Chovensbury.

Here was a subject that interested him and that intensely interested Mabel, and yet it could never be mentioned between them without a "Hullo! Hullo! Help! Out collision-mats! Stop the cab! Look out, Sabre! Sabre!"

He suddenly became aware—and he jammed on his brakes and dismounted by straddling a leg to the ground—that in the narrow lane he was plunging horses.

The riders had divided to make way for his bemused approach. On one side the lane was banked steeply up in a cutting. The horse of the rider on this side stood on its hind legs and appeared to be performing a series of postman's double knocks on the bank with its forelegs.

Lord Tybar, who bestrode it, and who did not seem to be at all concerned by his horse's antics.

HER HORSE TOSSED ITS HEAD. "SHALL WE COME DOWN NOW?" SHE SAID. by his horse copying a postman, looked over his shoulder at Sabre, showing an amused grin, and said, "Thanks, Sabre. This is jolly. I like this. Come on, old girl. This way down. Keep passing on please."

"Ass!" laughed a voice above them; and Sabre, who had almost forgotten there was another horse when he had abruptly wakened and dismounted, looked up at it.

The other horse was standing with complete and entirely unconcerned statuesqueness on the low bank which bounded the lane or his other side. Lady Tybar had taken it—or it had taken Lady Tybar—out of danger in a sideways bound, and horse and rider remained precisely where the sideways bound had taken them as if it were exactly where they had intended to go at the moment, and as if they were now settled there for all time as a living equestrian statue—a singularly striking and beautiful statue.

"We are here," said Lady Tybar. Her voice had a very clear, fine note. "We are rather beautiful up here, don't you think? Rather droll, isn't it? One takes the faintest notice of us, we might be off the earth. But we don't mind a bit. Hullo, Derry and Toms. Marko is actually taking off his hat to us. Bow, Derry."

Her horse, as if he perfectly understood, tossed his head, and she drew attention to it with a deprecating little gesture of her hand and, then, said, "Shall we come down now?" All right. We'll descend. This is us descending. Lady Tybar, who is a superb horsewoman, descending a precipice on her beautiful half-bred Derry and Toms, a winner at several shows.

Derry and Toms stepped down off the bank with complete assurance and superb dignity. With equal precision, moving his feet as though there were marked for them certain exact spots which he covered with infinite lightness and exactitude, he turned about and stood beside his partner in exquisite and immobile pose.

Thus the two riders faced Sabre, smiling upon him. He stood holding his bicycle immediately in front of them. The mare continued to quiver her beautiful nostrils at him; every now and then she blew a little agitated puff through them, causing them to expand and reveal yet more delicacy.

Sabre thought that the riders, with their heads, must be most striking, and somehow affecting picture of virile and graceful beauty he could ever have imagined.

Lord Tybar, who was thirty-two was debonaire and attractive of countenance to a degree. His eyes, which were gray, were extraordinarily nifty and carefree and bold spirit looked through those eyes and shone through their flashes and glints and sparkles of diamond light. His face was thin and of tanned olive. His face seemed to say to the world, challengingly, "I am here! I have arrived! Bring out your best and watch me! There were people women—who said he had a cruel mouth. They said this, not with censure or regret, but with a deliciously fearful rapture as though the cruel mouth (if it were cruel) were not the least part of his attraction.

GALWAY AGAIN MAY BE IRELAND PORT

Dublin — Galway will become the principal Irish port if plans of Free State leaders are successful.

Revival of the ancient port, whose deterioration began three hundred years ago after over four hundred years of commercial importance would cut a day off the trans-Atlantic mail service if airplanes were used between it and England.

Under direct British rule, Irish ports were at a disadvantage. British ports were favored, and because of discriminatory taxes, it was often cheaper for a ship from the United States bearing cargo for Ireland to discharge its cargo at an English port for re-shipment back to Dublin or Queenstown.

Under the Free State, it will be possible and advantageous for shipping to ply direct between Ireland and ports of the world.

Irish leaders hope to revive Galway as one of the principal ports of Europe. Its harbor is one of the best—thirty miles long and ten wide, sheltered by the Arran Islands. Its principal disadvantages at present are docks that will not accommodate large vessels and bad wharves. Both of these are to be remedied.

With prospect of both English and American capital coming into the country, leaders hope it will be possible to make Galway the principal Irish port.

It is situated at the middle of the west coast, and is the nearest port to those of northern North America. Sir John Alcock "jumped off" for his trans-Atlantic flight from a town near it.

The railway problem can be solved easily. There is a direct line to Dublin, with a junction for Belfast, two-thirds of the way east. The principal necessity is for speeding up the service.

Three Emporia Young Women
Try it and Find They Lose Weight

Emporia, Kas. — Can a working girl keep in proper physical and mental health on 60 cents as a daily food allowance?

"No."

That's the decision of three Emporia business women who tried it out for one week.

Henry Nickel, proprietor of a cafe, recommended this amount at the presentation of employers' testimony before the Kansas Court of Industrial Relations' hearing on women's wages.

But now he has changed his mind because:

Miss Charlotte R. Lewis, society editor of the Emporia Gazette; Miss Nell Baird, department head in a dry goods store; and Miss Sadie Sallars, assistant department head in a dry goods store, lost from one and one-half pounds to three and one-quarter pounds after eating on 60 cents daily for seven days.

The three women ate at various places, picking shops where food was cheapest. Breakfast usually consisted of a roll and coffee for 10 cents. Lunch allowance was 20 cents and supper 30 cents.

"We always went to bed hungry," said Miss Lewis. "And we all lost weight. It can't be done."

Now the cafe owner says:

"I must admit that the 60-cent range is not sufficient for the average person, after hearing the result of the trial."

Adventures Of
The Twins

Soap-Bubble Land

Soap-bubble land was a funny place. When Buskins stopped the little apple-tree elevator and the Twins stepped off, dozens of soap-bubble people of every size came bobbing along to greet them. There were soap-bubbles from almost every nation on the earth, although it is shocking to say that there are places (and big ones at that) where there are no soap-bubbles because there is no soap.

"One big fellow sprang lightly up to the top of Nick's head and balanced himself there for a minute. 'Hello, Nick!' he called into the little boy's ear. 'don't you know me? I'm the big bubble you blew with daddy's shaving soap. I'm considered very aristocratic up here. I shine with a hundred colors and smell very nice. Thank you very much for using such fine soap.'

"You're welcome," said Nick. "But when Daddy found it out he took my blow-pipe away for a week. I have to use laundry-soap now."

"Don't I know it," grumbled a cross-looking bubble, rolling up. "I'm the last one you blew. Look at me, brown as a lump of mud and a strong scent of kerosene. Ugh!"

"That's too bad!" said Nick, "but you see I couldn't help it."

But the bubble had worked himself into such a rage that he burst with indignation.

"Well, he wasn't happy anyway," said Nancy. "Oh, look there!"

A bunch of bubbles came along singing a song which went like this: "A rub a dub dub, We were born in a tub, Where we splashed and we foamed and we played, We slid down the board, And with laughter we roared, 'Till we frightened Susannah the maid."

Away they all scampered, playing leap-frog and a dozen other games known only to soap-bubbles.

It was a jolly place!

Polly and Paul--and Paris

Chapter 73--The Quest Goes On

BY ZOE BECKLEY

One could not have told which came first--the sound of the pistol shot or the cat-like leap of Paul upon the footpad's back. The man let out a snarl of rage as both of them went down together to the pavement. Paul felt as though he were fighting a threshing machine. Flail-like the fellow's arms and legs flew round. Without skill, but with the force of oaken bars.

Meantime Barry, playing for a chance to land a blow on the footpad without striking Paul, felt Violet lurch heavily against him. He turned just in time to catch her as she was falling. In his arms she fainted dead away. And on his hands was blood.

Managing somehow to hold her, he tore off his coat and propped her against it on a step. At the motion she revived a little, opened her eyes--"Violet! Oh, ma chere--" burst from Barry.

"Hush--it's nothing, only a tiny hurt. Help him!"

A swift glance at the two men in their desperate clasp showed Barry that the robber still had hold of the gun and that only Paul's fast slipping grasp of his wrist kept him from firing. Barry made a little swoop, grabbed the fellow's arm and twisted it behind his back until with a groan of pain he dropped the weapon.

Barry's shouts and whistles at last attracted attention, and from somewhere came the sound of running feet--a few frightened citizens and a pair of gendarmes.

The rat-eyed man seemed well known to them. "Jack, the Foreigner," he was called, and voluble were the expressions of satisfaction at getting him.

A cab was found and Violet taken by Barry and Paul to a doctor a few streets off.

The bullet had evidently passed between her arm and body, hardly more than grazing the latter.

Relief at learning she was only slightly hurt released Paul's thoughts with sharp agony to his own problem. "Violet," he spoke gently, but it was plain he was half mad with anxiety. "I've not time now to talk as I would want to you. But I must demand a disapproval of--of what you insinuated about my wife and--Barry here I didn't believe you. But when I find Polly I want to tell her you didn't believe it either."

"No--I didn't believe it, not really! I was--hysterical. Distracted with--But I can't tell you now. Some time I will. I only hope I've done no harm."

Paul flung up his head in a gesture of bitterness and despair.

"God knows!" he said, and went swiftly from the doctor's snuffy little office into the graying streets. One cry kept ringing through his brain--"Polly! Oh, my girl--Polly, Polly, pray God I find you safe!"

RIBBONS
A new ribbon which one sees used in trimmings for spring and summer is a very lovely blend of satin and moire. The effect is corded, but beautifully soft.

FOR HAIR BRUSHES
After washing the hair brush in warm water dip it into cold water and then let dry. This keeps the bristles stiff.

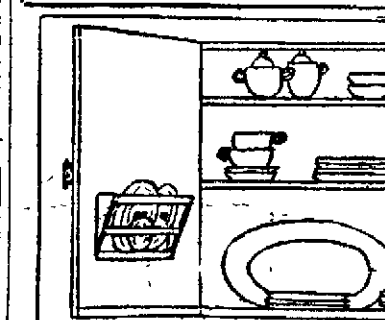

TASSEL BUTTONS
Tassel buttons are quite the newest thing in the way of buttons. When looped through the buttonhole the effect is that of a huge tassel ornamenting the garment.

TULLE
Little tulle collars, pleated and ruffled, are found at the necks of many of the smart new summer silk frocks.

PASTE
A paste effective for mending fine china can be made by dampening rice flour with cold water and simmering it gently on the back of the stove until it becomes quite thick. Since the paste is white it scarcely shows in mending.

GRAY AND MAUVE
As evening gowns go into colors, one finds that one of the newest and most interesting combinations is that of gray lace over mauve gossamer. A gown of this sort is sashed, velvet ribbons in fuchsia would be beautiful.

SPARE TIME JOBS
FOR FATHER

The lids of pans often fall or slide down off the pantry shelves. Avoid this by making a lid rack on the inside of the pantry doors. These racks will hold many lids and not take up much space.

Dried Peas

HERE is a great deal of nourishment in dried peas, but it should be remembered that a dish made with split peas is not quickly digested and is a very heavy food.

Peas are a protein and lacking in fat. This boiled dinner of salt pork and peas pudding conforms to a balanced ration. Serve a green salad and a plain fruit dessert to offset the fat and supply bulk and minerals.

BOILED PORK AND PEAS PUDDING
Leg of salt pork, 1 medium sized head cabbage, 4 parsnips, 1 onion, 1 carrot, 1/2 turnip, 1 stalk celery, 12 peppercorns.

FOR THE PUDDING--Two cups split peas, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 eggs (yolks), pepper.

Soak the peas over night. Put the pork in a big kettle, cover with warm water and bring to the boiling point. Skim well. If the pork is very salty put to cook in cold water, brought slowly to the boiling point and the water poured off.

Then put on in warm water and proceed as usual. Boil 10 minutes and add the onion, carrot, turnip and celery cut in slices. Add peppercorns and simmer from two to three hours. Allow 25 minutes per pound for cooking.

Cut parsnips lengthwise in quarters and boil in slightly salted water or with the pork. The parsnips should cook in 45 minutes. Boil cabbage in slightly salted water, drain and cut in neat squares. Serve the pork on a hot platter garnished with the vegetables.

TO MAKE THE PEAS PUDDING
Drain peas from hot water in which they were soaked. Tie in a cloth and boil with the pork for an hour and a half. Remove from cloth, rub through a sieve. Add butter, yolks of eggs and pepper. Beat well and put back in the cloth and boil 40 minutes longer.

If the kettle is not big enough to accommodate the peas, boil in a stew pan with one teaspoon salt. Cover with cold water and boil two hours. Add water as it boils away.

Then rub through sieve, add butter, yolks of eggs and pepper. Put in a well buttered baking dish and bake or steam for 40 minutes.

PEA FRITTERS
Two cups split peas, 1/4 teaspoon sugar, 3 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, fine dried bread crumbs.

Soak peas over night in six quarts cold water. Drain. Put in a stew pan the peas will about half fill. Add salt and sugar and cover with cold water and simmer for two hours. Add water to prevent burning, but as the peas become soft let the water cook away as much as possible.

Rub through a purse strainer or sieve. Season with salt and pepper and butter and pour into a platter to become cool enough to handle. Form in small flat cakes and roll in crumbs. Fry in frying pan in bacon drippings.

SPLIT PEA SOUP
One cup split peas, 1/2 stalk celery, 2 small onions, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 dessertspoon butter, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper.

Wash peas well and soak over night in six cups cold water. Boil in water in which peas were soaked. It will take about one and one-half hours to cook the peas tender. Rub through strainer. Stew celery and onions in water to cover and put through sieve.

Melt butter and brown flour carefully in melted butter. Slowly add the water in which the celery and onions were cooked. Add this to peas. Season with salt and pepper and reheat if necessary.

It too thick add milk or meat stock to make the desired creaminess. (Copyright, 1922, NEA Service)

Getting away to a flying start with four strikes and one spare in the first frame and rolling high during the entire match, the Rainbow Gardens of Appleton crashed the maples for a total score of 3,001 Tuesday night on the Appleton Elks home drives and went into first place in the five-man event of the state tournament for Elks.

The Rainbow Gardens were shooting in great form and performed before a great crowd of rooters that filled all available space for spectators at the Elks home alleys. The spectators included four members of the Elks, and the team of Menasha Allys, who were tied with the Beaumont Hotel team of Green Bay for first place in the tournament five-man event.

In the first game of the match the Rainbow Gardens shot for a total of 969 pins and when the score was 969 the spectators realized the Appleton aggregation had an opportunity to place high in the event. The Rainbow Gardens hit their fastest stride in the second game, toppling 1,076 pins and breaking the former tournament record of 1,047 pins for a single game.

HAD BIG LEAD
Goin into the final game the Appleton bowlers needed only 794 maples to take the lead in the five-man event. They made a slow start but began picking up in the fifth inning and breezed along for a score of 956. Jacobson was the last man to roll. He got seven pins on his first ball and the crowd began yelling to him to shoot a spare to make the team count 3,000. Jacobson came through with the spare and topped nine pins on his last roll for the count of 3,001 for the match.

Following are the scores made by the team:

WASHINGTON TO HAVE FAST CLUB IN FLAG CHASE

Senators Contenders for Pennant in American League Title Race

By J. R. Vinter
Washington is sure a first division outfit this season and can be considered also as a pennant possibility.

With perhaps the best infield in the American League, a first class outfield, a good catching staff and a fair corps of pitchers, the Senators will take the field with about the best team Washington has ever had. In addition to possessing the stuff, the team also has the spirit.

As with clubs excepting the New York Yankees, the greatest problem of Washington concerns the pitching. Walter Johnson, of course, is the dean of the staff and much is expected of him this season. He has been ill with the grip but he ought to be in shape within two weeks after the opening of the season.

Mogridge, Zachary and Erickson, three veterans, looked very good in the training camp and Courtney, a youngster who had everything last season but control, seems to have found the plate.

If the Senators are able to develop a couple of reliable youngsters who can take their turn in the box half the battle will be won. There are three good prospects with the team—Cleason, a Shreveport rookie; Woodward, a veteran of the minors and Phillips, a youngster from New Orleans.

The real find looks to be a youngster named Brillheart. He is a southpaw and is only 18. If he comes along he ought to be a sensation in another year.

The addition of Roger Peckinpaugh to the infield means much. Last year, Harris, at second and Sharkey at third had to play out of their territory to help out a weak shortstop and their work necessarily suffered.

SUMMARY OF SPORTS
New York—The Yanks will have no trouble winning the pennant. St. Louis and Washington will be dangerous but not Cleveland. Col. Jacob Ruppert, president of the Yanks said.

Fort Worth—Two homers and a slug by Captain Dave Bancroft helped the Giants beat the White Sox 8 to 5.

San Francisco—The Chicago Cubs were forced to remain idle account of cold weather and rain.

Beaumont—Sensational fielding in the ninth inning cut down a Brooklyn rally and enabled the Yanks to win, 6 to 5.

Fans Wonder if Appleton Grappler Has Hold to Throw Strangler Lewis

With fans in all sections of the Fox River Valley showing great interest in the Lewis-Hill world's championship match and tickets selling at a lively rate it is expected that the largest crowd that ever saw a grappling struggle in this city will watch the mighty title holder and the Appleton star battle in the Armory G arena Friday night. Hill has many friends in this section of the state who are anxious to see how his stacks up against the champion while Lewis, with his tremendous strength, his marvelous speed and his crushing headlock is a big attraction wherever he appears in the squared circle.

The great confidence the local man has in his ability to down the heavyweight king has Appleton fans puzzled. Hill honestly believes he will win from Lewis Friday night and critics wonder if the Appleton grappler has developed something new in his secret training bouts that will give him victory over the title holder. Other wrestlers have come out with new holds that have surprised and downed their opponents and it is not all unreasonable to believe that Hill has found a grip that will win for him the world's championship crown.

Hill will enter the ring Friday night weighing about 204 pounds. The Appleton heavyweight weighed in following his workout Tuesday night and tipped the beam at 207 pounds. He intends to do just enough work for the remainder of the week to take off three pounds which will make him weigh 204 pounds, his best wrestling poundage. Hill is in excellent condition and ready now for a grueling struggle.

Lewis left Kansas City Tuesday for his home at Port Edwards, Wis., following his victory over Rust Mah-mout Monday night. Mah-mout is one of the greatest defensive wrestlers in the world but Lewis downed him in two straight falls with the headlock. The "Terrible Turk" gave the champion a terrific tussle to win the first fall but came back for the second fall in a wearied condition as a result of the headlock and Lewis quickly clamped on another head grip and pinned the shoulders of Mah-mout to the canvas.

Lewis plans to visit his parents in Port Edwards for two days and come to Appleton Friday. He trains every day whether he wrestles or not and will be in condition for his match with Hill.

WANTS DEMPSEY TO MEET LEWIS IN MIXED BOUT

Sandow Again Starts Agitation for Battle Between Two Champions

Billy Sandow, manager of Ed (Strangler) Lewis, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, has again started agitation for a mixed wrestling-boxing bout between Lewis and Jack Dempsey. Sandow hurried another defy at Dempsey in Kansas City Monday and had a few statements to make in regard to chances a boxer would have in the ring with a finished wrestler.

"These boxers who claim they have a chance in a rough and tumble fight with a finished wrestler who has any speed at all, tickle me," said Sandow. "They know they don't have a chance. I have offered $10,000 as a side bet that Lewis can beat Dempsey or any other boxer and will stage the battle on a winner-take-all proposition."

Sandow is not simply talking on theory. He knows by experience. During the war Sandow taught his system of had-to-hand fighting in the army. He wrote a book on wrestling tactics as a method of self defense and showed how a wrestler could beat a boxer with a bayonet. Sandow claims the "go-behind" which he and Ed Lewis perfected can throw any boxer on the mat before he has a chance to land a single punch. Sandow says Lewis can do this without Moines will wrestle for the world's heavyweight championship here April 13. Tom Law, promoter, announced Monday.

Mr. Higley says in part: "Many of us had been visitors in your city before, but we had never had the opportunity of seeing the great activity of your people to make her guests feel at home immediately, and to make them leave wishing that their stay could be prolonged."

SCHAEFER LEADS HOPPE IN CUE TITLE GAMES

By United Press Leased Wire
Chicago—Champion Jake Schaefer Wednesday is leading Willie Hoppe by 1,000 to 952 points in their 1,500 point contest for the world's 15.2 ball line billiard championship.

Schaefer who won the second block of 500 played last night by 500 to 488, has the balls in close position to continue on the last round tonight and it is believed a good count on the start will be a big factor in the result.

Hoppe got the high run with 167 last night against 157 by Schaefer.

LEWIS AND CADDOCK TO WRESTLE APRIL 14

Wichita—Ed ("Strangler") Lewis of Omaha and Earl Caddock of Des Moines will wrestle for the world's heavyweight championship here April 13. Tom Law, promoter, announced Monday.

RICKARD FREED OF CHARGE MADE BY YOUNG GIRLS

Fight Promoter Says Jury Gave Him Greatest Thrill of His Life

By Henry L. Farrell
New York—"I took New York? No sir. Right here I stay. They tried to get me here and I'll get them in their own yard."

Pressed to be more definite than "they," Tex Rickard, "out of the bad mess" that has had him worried for months, added this morning:

"They know who I mean and that's all for the present."

"Framing and blackmailing are all a part of the big game I guess but there are no rules that prevent you from striking back."

Rickard said that hitting pay dirt in Alaska and counting $700,000 winnings in four years didn't compare to the thrill that was his when the jury said he was not guilty of improper relations with the little 15-year-old girl. "I've never felt so good. I feel fighting. All I need is a good match and I know where they are—several of them."

The former matchmaker of the garden said he once had a great feeling of suspense when he was rolling the bones in Philadelphia for $35,000 a throw.

"I thought that was about the limit of strain but the hour while the jury was out had it beaten clear off the boards," he said.

While he was nominally out of the direction of sports in the garden, he had not totally severed his connections as it would have taken months for him to have completed the business of turning over all his interests.

Rickard was freed by a jury early Wednesday from charges of improper conduct with Sarah Schoenfeld, 15-year-old school girl. The jury was out 90 minutes.

DYAN SHINE BOWLERS TO MEET EAGLES FRIDAY

The Dyan Shine bowling team will meet the F. O. E. squad in a match game on the Eagle alleys Friday evening. The Dyan Shines won from the Eagles in a former meeting.

Mr. Barton of the Barton Dyan Shine Co., Waco, Texas, will bring a crack team to Appleton April 14 to meet the local squad of the same name.

BEGIN VOTING BY MAIL FOR TUESDAY ELECTION

Several votes have already been cast for the city election next Tuesday. Teachers and students who will be away next week for spring vacation have cast their ballots with E. L. Williams, city clerk.

Many applications for ballots have been received from Appleton voters who are out of town and who will not be able to be here on election day. Applications for ballots by persons who expect to be away Tuesday have been received by Mr. Williams and the applications and ballots will be returned this week.

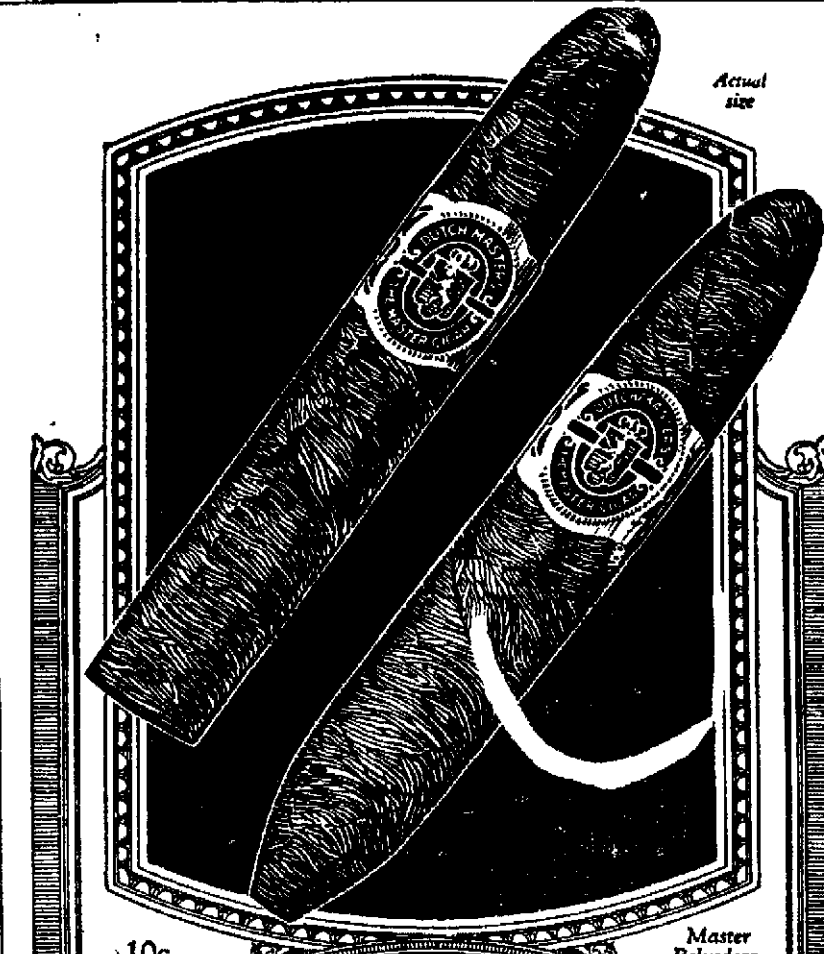

All ballots received by mail must be in the hands of the election inspectors by the time the polls close Tuesday evening.
